In his presentation, Clinical and Silicone Services Director of Dorset Orthopaedic, Matthew Hughes, will be exploring the impact of amputation to individuals.

With an international reputation for excellence, Dorset Orthopaedic is known not only for providing world-leading prosthetic, orthotic and silicone solutions but also for bespoke, personalised service and care.

Matthew will explain the developments and progress that the prosthetics industry has experienced, and the difference this has made to individuals and their daily lives, from improved function and mobility to increased confidence.

Finally, Matthew will explore the cost implications of prosthetic solutions and how these can be managed.
